Foreword

New England, the birthplace of the American way of life and the free public school system, has maintained its position as a center for educational progress since colonial times. The education of their youth is of prime concern to the New Englander. This concern with the scholastic and vocational needs of the children led to the development of the comprehensive high school.

When the citizens of Norfolk, Plainville, and Wrentham, Massachusetts realized that individually they could not provide optimum secondary education for their children, they joined together to build a Regional High School which would provide a broader curriculum for the pursuit of knowledge. This school, known as King Philip Regional High School, was built in the central town, Wrentham, in 1956.

In the pursuant nine years, the curriculum has been widened to a greater degree and the extra-curricular activities program has expanded.

There has been an economic expansion within the towns that has led to a population growth. This growth has almost doubled the school population. As a result, a Regional Junior High School will open in Norfolk in September, 1966.

King Philip Regional High School will become a four-year school in fall of 1966. This change makes possible an even wider curriculum, with the time and space for enrichment programs.

The tri-town citizenry and student body consider their school "a showcase for learning." The 1966 Chieftain will endeavor to give those who are interested, a chance to become familiar with the learning and educational processes displayed in the "showcases."

Administrators expand

NEW SCHOOL ADDS TO RESPONSIBILITY

School committee members, along with Mr. David Eaton, superintendent, have spent many hours in conferences and at the new junior high school site. Although they are all pleased with the progress made, the time spent in this endeavor has added greatly to their regular school responsibilities.

Mr. Charles Manos, principal, and his assistant, Mr. Walter White, are busy and familiar figures at King Philip. They are responsible for instituting the staggered session scheduling, which takes care of the student overflow in this last year before the junior high students move in to the new school.

Each school day begins with the announcements which Mr. Walter White, assistant principal, is checking for authorization.

Mr. Charles L. Manos, principal, must fit the reading of the daily mail into his busy schedule.

Mr. David Eaton, superintendent, who is primarily concerned with the building of the Regional Junior High School in Norfolk, points out the location of the main offices to Chieftain editors Marcia Semple and Charles Richardson.

the "learning showcase"

Secretary to the principal, Mrs. Ruth Bailey, is assisted in keeping school registers and student records, typing notices, writing correspondence, and running the switchboard by Mrs. Mary Hallett, and Mrs. Dorothy Mitchell.

Attendance checks and pursuant telephone calls are made daily by Mrs. Barbara Franklin, secretary to Mr. Walter White, assistant principal.

Mrs. Katherine Sheehan and Mrs. Mildred Hill are responsible for the many business activities of the superintendent's office.

School committee members responsible for the 1965-66 school policies are: Mrs. Priscilla Bailey, secretary; Mrs. Eva Holmes, Mrs. Helen Smith, Mr. Edward Brown, Mr. David Eaton, superintendent; Mr. Walter Nelson, Mr. John Haley, Mr. Robert Carr, chairman; and Mr. Charles Winter.

Guidance Counsellors meet

COUNSELLORS PROGRAM CAREFULLY

Students must have competent guidance in the planning of their academic or vocational programs if they are to meet the competitive challenges which college admissions and industry present today.

King Philip guidance counsellors have undertaken an ambitious testing program which provides them with evaluative measures for determining the program of studies which will best satisfy the needs of each and every student.

Programs are re-evaluated each year to make sure that the students are following the course of study which is right for them.

Mr. Francis O'Regan, guidance director, explains a college bulletin to Charles Richardson.

Counsellor and head football coach, Mr. Conrad A. Pensavalle explains daughter Lee Stuart's college board scores to Mrs. Virginia Stuart.

Guidance counsellor, Miss Catherine Brennan, makes a pleasant telephone contact with a parent.

individual student needs

Typing and mailing transcripts is a most important responsibility of Mrs. Madeline Davis, secretary to the guidance director and counsellors.

Mr. Stanley Hamilton, counsellor, and Donna Miconi review her cumulative record.

Stephen Henrich, Mary Jane Delaney and Dianne Hamilton check college catalogues for entrance requirements and programs of study.

Health services extensive

As part of the twice a year dental survey, Spencer Frankl, D.M.D. is checking Judith Burt's teeth X-rays.

BUSY HEALTH PROGRAM

Miss Margaret Keady, R.N., director of the health service program at King Philip is also the nurse director of the Norfolk Mental Health Association, a member of Massachusetts School Nurses Committee, and advisor to King Philip Future Nurses Club.

King Philip's health service program includes physical examinations, visual and hearing tests, speech therapy, dental health, and immunization program for diphtheria, tetanus, and tuberculosis. Health conferences with parents, pupils, and faculty, along with home visitations when necessary, are included in the comprehensive health program.

Eye tests are given annually to all students. Here Miss Keady tests Ronald Tibbetts for possible eye defects.

Miss Margaret Keady, R.N., who is responsible for the health program at King Philip, is always ready to care for any student illness.

Hearing tests are given every year and in this instance Miss Keady is testing Thomas Maduskuie.

Service staffs provide for student welfare

SKILLED SERVICE STAFFS

School police officer Mr. A. Whitman Jameson, guards against traffic mishaps and accidents; Mr. Clayton Cummings and his competent staff members maintain the school plant and grounds; and Mr. Julius Candella and his efficient cafeteria helpers serve hot lunches daily to more than one thousand students. Services of the type rendered by these skilled people do much to make the school day pleasant.

Officer A. Whitman Jameson controls all traffic at the beginning and end of each school day.

Every school day hundreds of hot lunches are efficiently served by cafeteria staff members: Clara White, Elizabeth DiSciullo, Lucy Wignall, Marion McCarthy, Rennie Bowden, Grace Matakanski, Velma Perry, Alyce Binney, Julius Candella, and Virginia Mitchell.

Head custodian, Mr. Clayton Cummings, is responsible for all maintenance and custodial services at King Philip.

Custodians Mr. Curtis Willard, Mr. Edmund Major, Mr. Francis Fields, Mr. William Pierpoint, and Mr. Pasquale Instasi ably assist Mr. Clayton Cummings in all custodial duties.

Reading and Language Arts enhance learning

Mrs. Barbara Popper, reading teacher, and Mrs. Alice Church, director of the developmental reading program, confer between classes.

EFFICIENCY AND POWER ARE KEYS TO BETTER READING SKILLS

Reading skills must be developed to a level of efficiency and power if the student is to achieve in the required high school curriculum of studies. Greater emphasis is placed on the development of skills at all levels of learning. Plans are being formulated for the introduction of remedial-corrective program for the 1966-67 school year.

LANGUAGE ARTS A COMPREHENSIVE PROGRAM

King Philip offers a sequentially developed Language Arts program in literature, composition, oral speaking, and grammar. Instruction is geared to student potential and achievement level.

Communicative skills are basic to all learning. Once the fundamental concepts are learned, the student begins to enjoy and profit from the understandings which come to him from the great world of literature and language.

Mr. James Black, English Department chairman, checks a literature assignment with senior, Donna Woolford.

King Philip's English department has more members than any other academic department. Members of the department, chaired by Mr. James Black are: Miss Marcia Friel, Mrs. Carol Arrick, Miss Gail Wexler, Mrs. Eleanor R. Alter, Miss Mary Kelleher, Mr. James Black, Mrs. Patricia Ferney, Miss Sheila Sullivan, Miss Elizabeth Petralia, and Miss Catherine Fitzpatrick.

Knowledge, the essence of world harmony

Miss Priscilla Barnes, Mrs. Mildred Wallace, chairman of the foreign language department; Mrs. Valentina Dzelzitis, Mrs. Katherine Hadjiyannis, Mrs. Lorna Russell, and Mrs. Lucy Costello hold articles which represent the countries of the foreign languages which they teach.

OPPORTUNITIES TO LEARN ABOUT PEOPLE AND CULTURE

If today's students are to know their world neighbors, they must have at least a working knowledge of the geography, history, government, and language of these and their own people and cultures. The social studies and the foreign language programs at King Philip offer all an opportunity to learn in these content areas.

Social studies courses are offered at all grade levels and include geography and government as well as American, World and European history.

Modern foreign languages — French, Spanish, German, and Russian emphasize the oral and conversational skills as much as the written and literary. Latin is offered as a four year study to give students a knowledge of an ancient language and culture.

History teacher, and senior class advisor, Mr. John Dwyer, explains some teaching methods to student teacher, Mr. James Ferney, a senior at Boston College.

RESERVED BOOKS
NON-FICTION

King Philip's Social Studies Department runs the gamut from seventh grade geography to advanced senior courses in European History. Faculty members gathered around the symbolic globe, who teach social studies subjects are: Mr. Hugh McComb, Mr. John Dwyer, Mr. Francis Gallipeau, Mr. William Brennan, Mrs. Anita Weinman, Miss Loretta Cimini, Miss Clara Manteca, history department chairman; Mr. Richard Guilette, Miss Catherine Fitzpatrick, Miss Suzanne Person, Mr. James Ferney, and Mr. Jan Van der Beurghe.

Mathematics and science challenge minds

Miss Genevieve Szczepaniak, Miss Margaret Flaherty, Mrs. Lydia Fisher, Mr. William Skulley, Mr. George Nickerson, Mr. Edward Morgan, chairman; Mr. Robert Perry, and Mr. William Lepere, teach both traditional and modern mathematics.

Mathematics teacher, Mr. Anthony DiRe, waits for his next class.

THINKING AND REASONING, IMPORTANT BY-PRODUCTS

Scientific and mathematical reasoning make for logical thinking. Although the knowledge gained in classes such as algebra and biology is of great value in itself, the ability to think and reason is an equally important by-product. It is with this thought in mind that the King Philip course offerings have been set up.

Mr. Anthony Paglione, head of the science department; Mr. Glen Kibler, Mr. Jeffery Lambert, Mr. Charles Vaillancourt, Mrs. Marcia Boynton, Mr. Harry Burry, Mrs. Stella Schwork, Mr. William Brennan, Mr. Lawrence Lerner, and Mr. Robert Creighton are proud of their bulletin board.

Library, art, and music stimulate thought

CENTER FOR PLEASURE AND KNOWLEDGE

King Philip's library facilities are available to all students whether for reading pleasure or research. The library is the most important center in any school. Students and teachers depend upon the volumes — literary and reference — newspapers, and current periodicals for enrichment and factual knowledge.

King Philip's obliging librarian, Mrs. Winona LoGrasso, tracks down a volume for Ann Lukk.

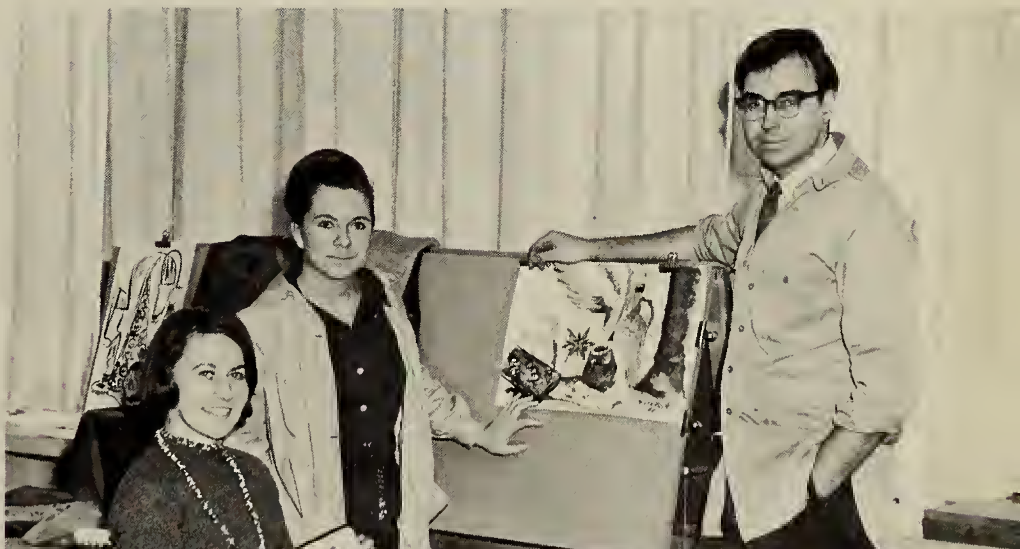
Musical director, Mr. Raymond Hill, uses his pencil for a baton.

Mr. Edward Denon, drill instructor of the band, works his formation for the next half-time show.

ART AND MUSIC FOR INTEREST OR CAREER

Creative arts are as necessary to the whole development of the student as are the academic and vocational studies. At King Philip there are sequentially progressive art and music programs — grades 7-12. The programs are so planned that they hold interest for both the student who is interested in music and art and those who plan to follow careers in these subject fields.

Mr. Carlton Nickerson, chairman of the art department, shows a still-life painting to Miss Susan Tellis, student teacher, and Miss Lois Curran, art instructor.



Physical fitness promotes good health

PHYSICAL EDUCATION HELPS TO BUILD HEALTHY BODIES

Physical education is complementary to scholastic education in the development of the individual. The President's Council on Physical Fitness was initiated by President John F. Kennedy for the expressed purpose of building healthy bodies to go with healthy minds. The Physical Education department at King Philip follows the Council's program closely in planning its Physical Education program.

Miss Marcia Connors, girls' physical education director, types out a report with the help of Mr. Thomas Hartley, boys' physical education instructor and football and basketball coach.

Mrs. Patricia Wilcox, physical education instructor, grades students on their dribbling techniques.

Athletic director, Mr. Michael Cosentino, stops on his way to the baseball diamond.

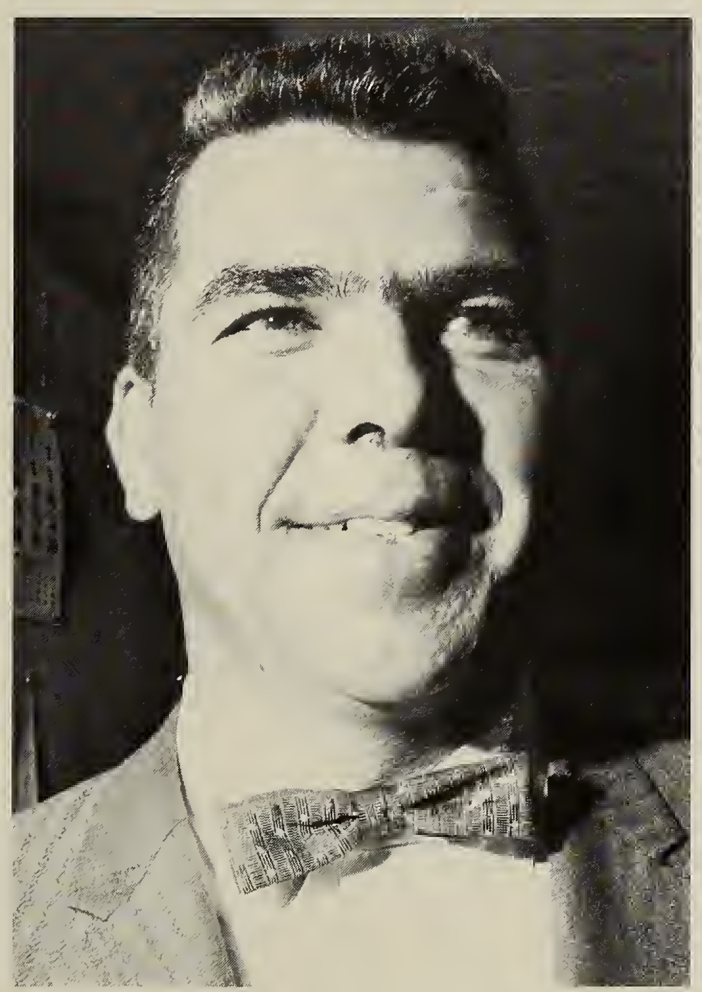
Better business techniques through education



Mr. John Robbins, chairman of the business department, is also teacher of driver education, senior advisor, and hockey coach.

BUSINESS EDUCATION FOR ALL

Future secretaries, office clerks, and bookkeepers receive instruction in these technical skills in the department of business education. All students including the college-bound are privileged to participate in this well-rounded program.

Mrs. Elizabeth Tolley and Mrs. Mildred Edwards, business teachers, prove they are adept typists.

Business students rely upon Mrs. Rita Tokaz, Mrs. Elizabeth Tolley, Mr. John Robbins, chairman; Mrs. Cecelia Murphy, and Mrs. Mildred Edwards, to teach them the practical skills of typing, shorthand, and bookkeeping.

Tomorrow's homemakers get a headstart

Mrs. Shirley Sherlock, Mrs. Pauline Pfeffer, and Mrs. Margaret Stahl concoct one of the specialties for which the home economics department is noted.

HOME ECONOMICS – INVALUABLE ASSET

Home economics is important to any girl, whether she looks forward to becoming a housewife or a career woman. Regardless of her life plans, practical training in sewing, cooking, and in becoming a gracious hostess will prove invaluable.

The sewing department sets up many such eye-catching window displays.

Creativity is an integral part of the home economics courses.

Patricia O'Brien pays close attention to Mrs. Pauline Pfeffer as she demonstrates the art of sewing.

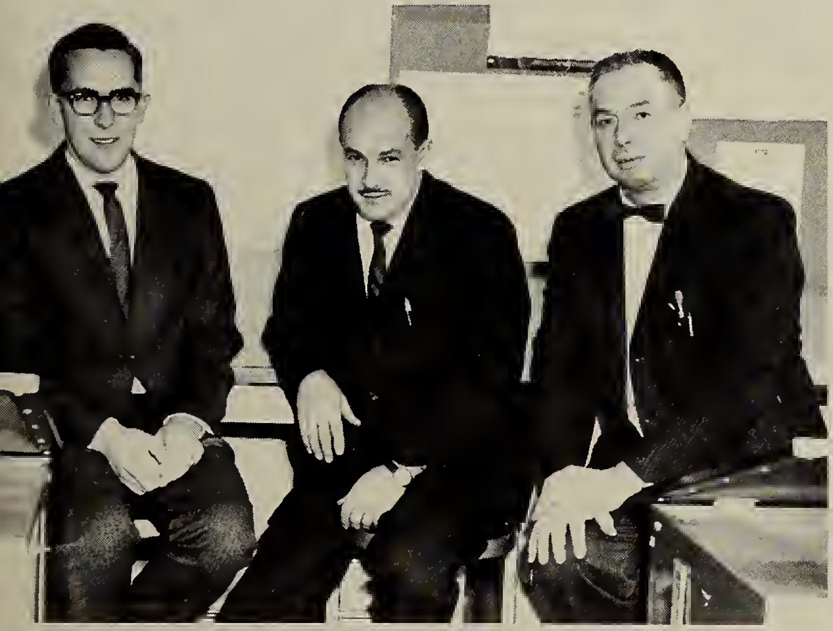
Industrial arts as a career or hobby

SKILLS, BOTH CREATIVE AND PRACTICAL

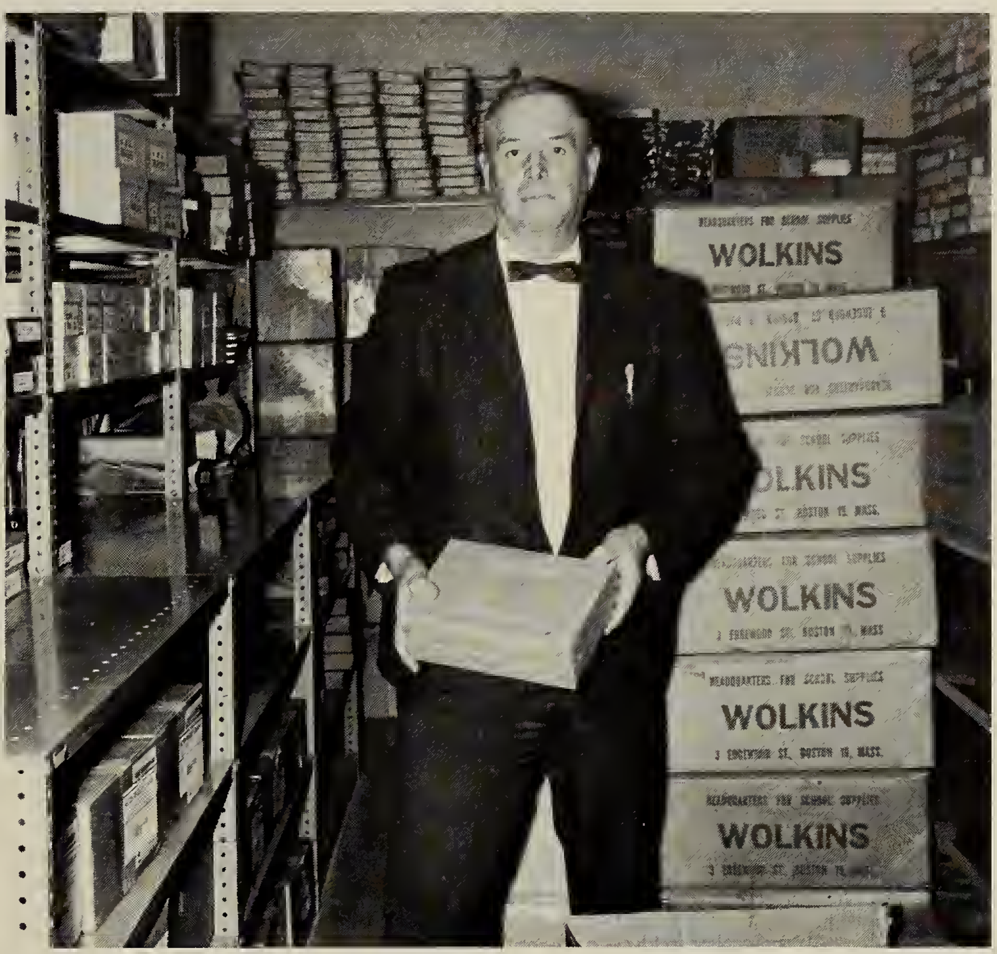
In the industrial arts program, students are taught practical skills in the areas of mechanical drawing, woodworking and metal, which will be useful in employment and as a hobby.

Wood and metal working skills are creative as well as practical. Students who learn drafting find this a most useful art as a basic course in engineering or architecture.

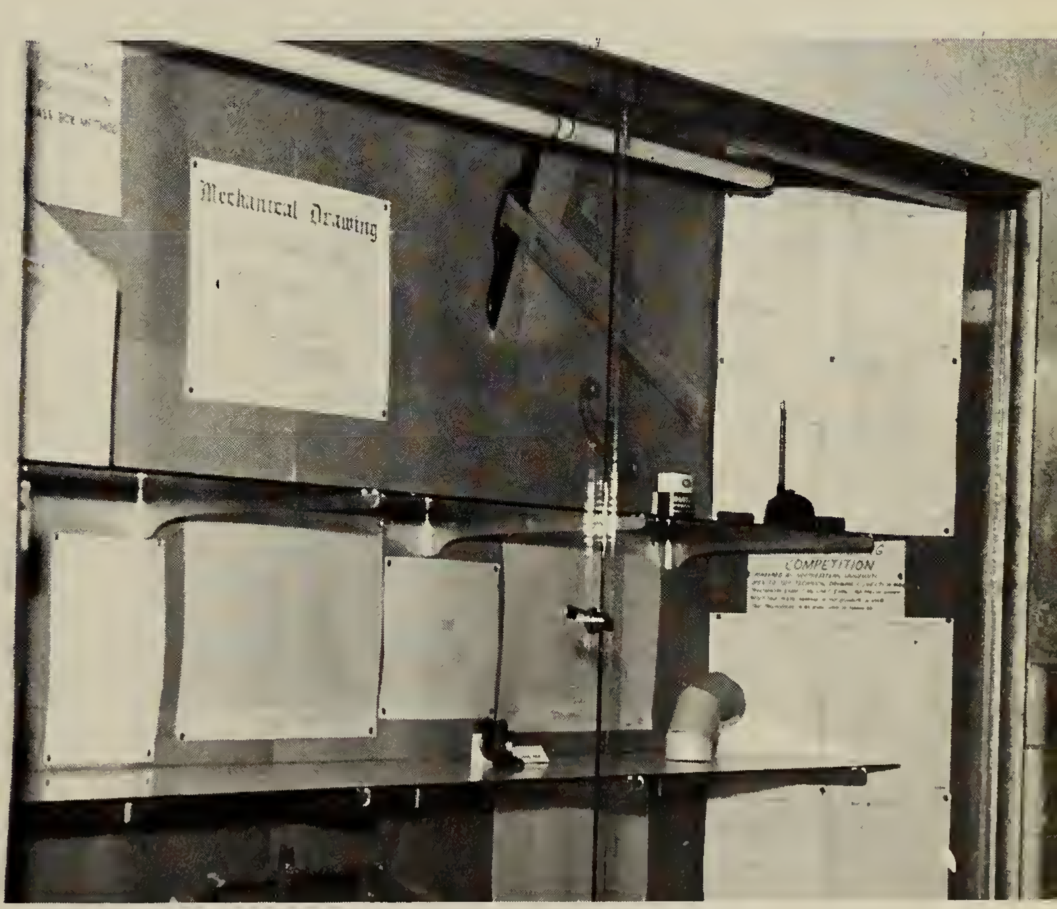
Mr. David Sumner, Mr. Norman Olivier, and Mr. Gilbert Rishton discuss the merits of a vocational school.



Michael Mavrides learns one of the many intricate shop procedures while Mr. Gilbert Rishton looks on approvingly.



Mr. Gilbert Rishton, industrial arts chairman, takes an inventory in the supply room.



This display exhibits the many facets of a vocational school.

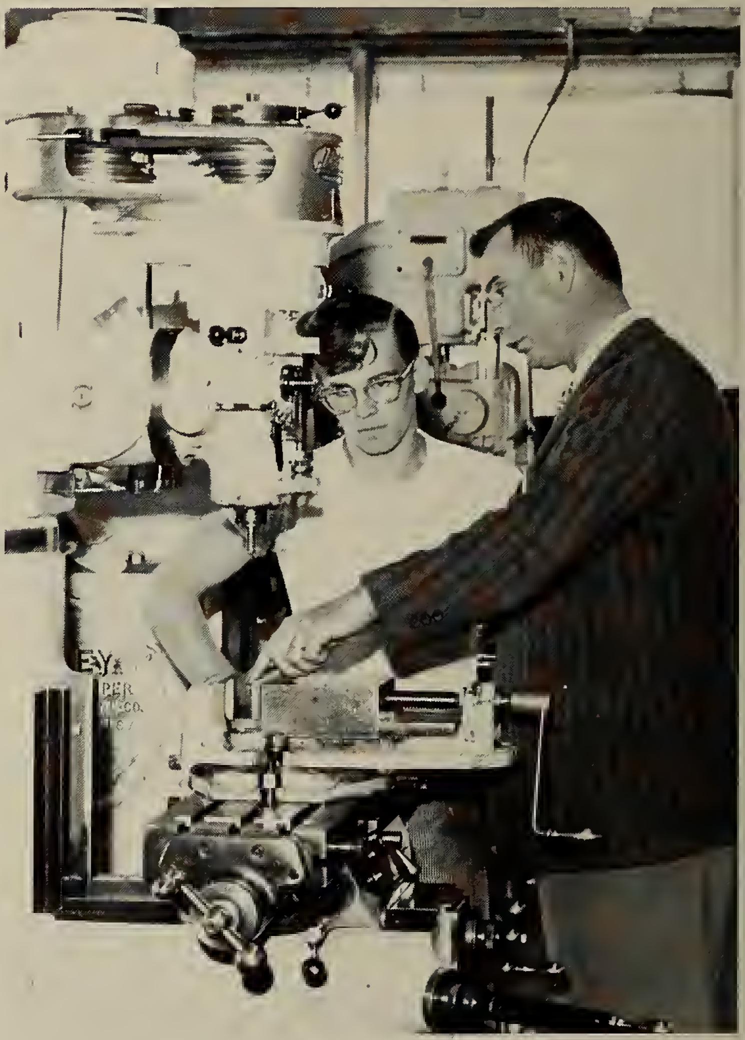
Manual dexterity is a prerequisite

These vocational instructors, Mr. Raymond Harding, Mr. Antone Cabral, Mr. Fred Tabor, and Mr. Gerard Desrosiers, provide the young men of the regional area with vocational training which helps them to become skilled workers.

VOCATIONAL SKILLS ARE PROPORTIONATE TO SUCCESS

Vocational Training plus academic subjects form well-rounded individuals as well as skilled workers. Manual dexterity, aptly cultivated, can be transformed into earning power. Like their college-bound peers, the vocational students strive for achievement in equally demanding working fields.

Miss Donna Tourtillotte, secretary to the vocational director, programs another of the increasing number of vocational students.



Mr. Tabor explains the functions of a shop machine to vocational student, Thomas Pezold.

The vocational department displays the projects of, and reference materials available to the vocational students.

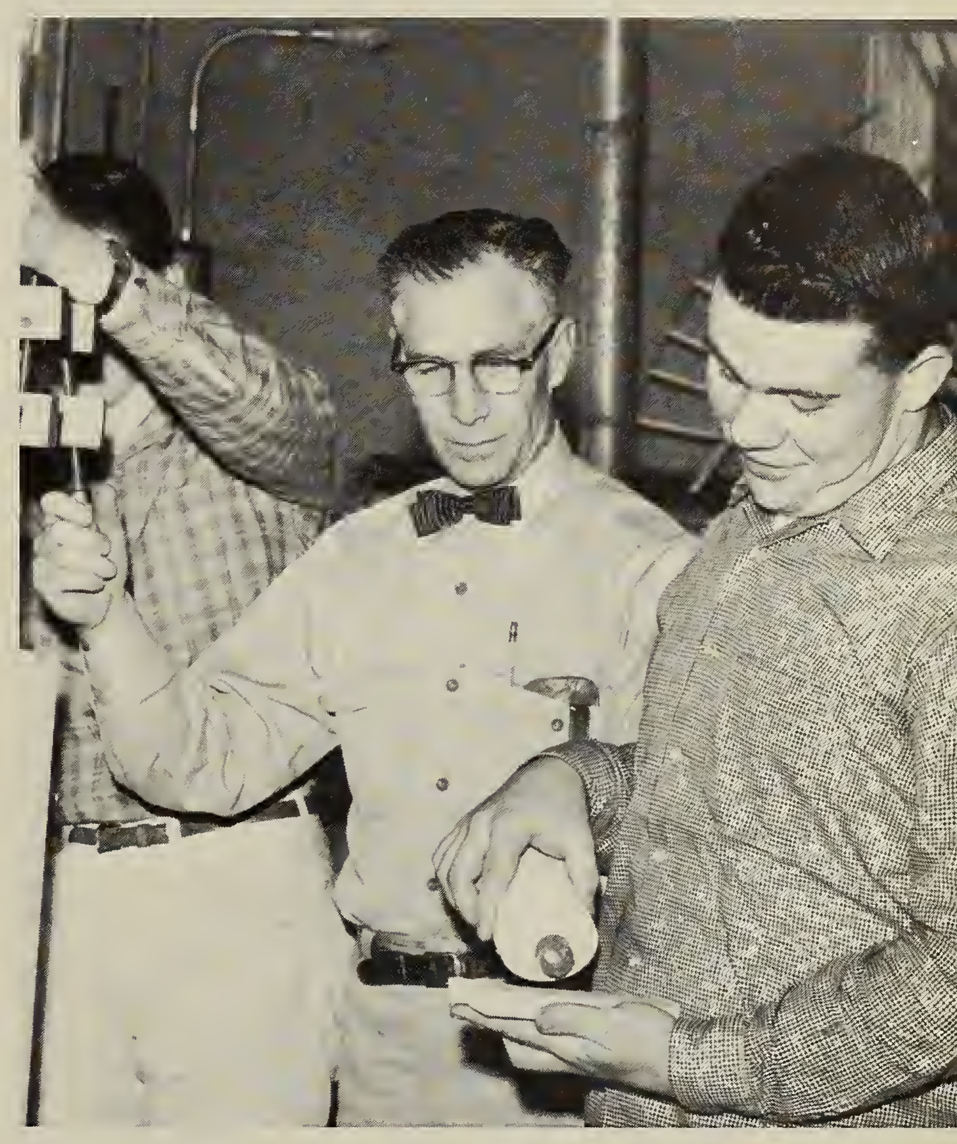
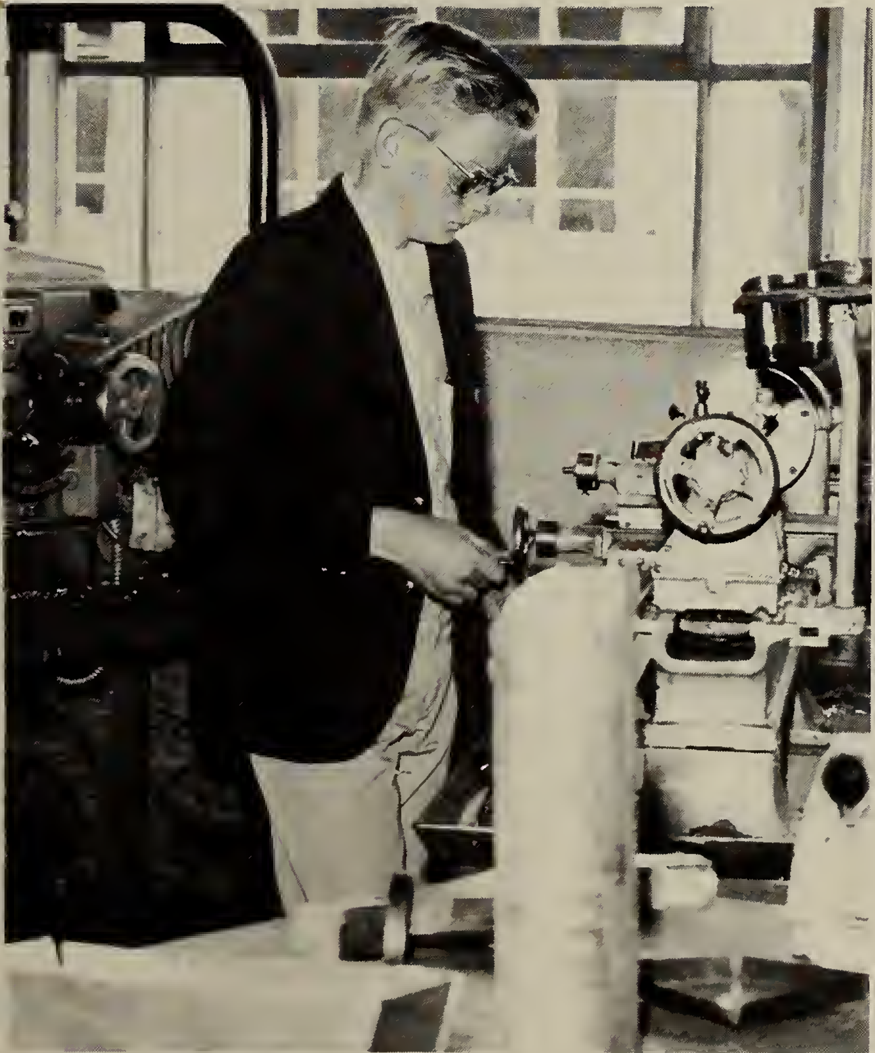
Vocational director, Mr. Preston Titus, proudly points out the progress carpentry students are making on their latest project.



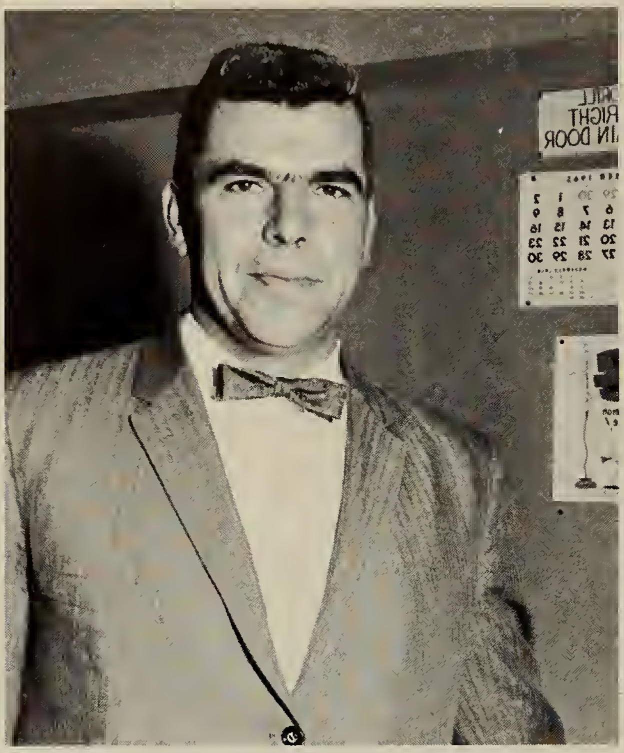
George Brooks helps Mr. Gerard Desrosiers clean up the shop after a hard day's work.

Daniel Tower wears safety glasses while working this machine.



Robert Landry and John O'Connell finish off a desk.

Specialized instruction for special needs



Mr. John Robbins, hockey coach and chairman of the business department; teaches driver education, also.

Audio-visual aids director, Mr. Francis Gallipeau, checks the moving picture projector.

DRIVER EDUCATION

In view of the current furor dealing with the minimum driving age and the skill or lack of driving skill attributed to teenagers, it is increasingly important for driver education programs to instill in their students a high degree of proficiency and respect for other motorists.

SPECIAL EDUCATION

Special education is designed so that students may work at ability levels in academic studies and in the special areas of home economics, industrial arts, and physical education. These students, also, participate in the student activities and sports which interest them.

AUDIO-VISUAL AIDS

Audio-visual aids have become an integral part of modern day education. Materials which could not, otherwise, be shown or listened to can be presented to the students by way of projectors, tape recorders, and records.

SPEECH THERAPY

Ability to speak clearly and correctly is as important as being able to read well. Speech defects can hinder the student and job hunter. Mrs. Mary Voegtlin, speech therapist, works with students who have corrective defects. Students are referred by teachers who can easily spot minor or major defects in classroom recitations.

Special education instructor, Mrs. William Brennan, is new to the King Philip this year.

Mrs. Mary Voegtlin, speech therapist, comes to the King Philip twice a week.

GUIDELINE TO THE FUTURE

"Begin to be now what you will be hereafter" is the motto chosen by the Class of 1966 as its guideline to the future. A motto worthy of a senior class which recognizes that the six years spent at King Philip is only the prelude to further academic achievement, to the search for vocational opportunities, or to careers in the service. It is truly a sophisticated concept for a class about to step out of the "Showcase for Learning" into the practical world of self-application and strife.

SCHOLASTIC PRESSURES INCREASE

Intensified pressures and competition for college admissions make the maintenance of a high scholastic average more difficult to attain and maintain. High academic standards keynote membership in the Honorificists Chapter of the National Senior Honor Society at King Philip. Students must continue to perform at a high achievement level if they are to be inducted into and continue membership in this highly selective group. Citizenship, character, service, and leadership are, also, necessary attributes for membership.

Apart from increased application in academic content areas of study, Honor Society members tutor less able students, usher at school functions, give an annual tea for alumni during the Christmas season, induct new members into the Society in April, and visit the Shakespearean Theater at Stratford, Connecticut.

Marcia Semple, Dianne Hamilton, Bonnie Jones, Barbara Lemmer, Janice Boucher, Mary Simpson, Lee Stuart, Susan Croswell, Frances McGarry, Ellen Carlson, Ann Lukk, Karen Pearson, Robert Pelletier, Peter Finley, Richard Lunn, Guy Wickman, Stephen Henrich, and William Helfen are forturnate to have qualified for membership in the Senior Honor Society.

Miss Gail Wexler, English teacher, and Miss Elizabeth Petralia, Senior Honor Society advisor and English teacher, take time out for "the pause that refreshes."

leadership and citizenship

Students who have achieved scholastically and were selected for membership in the Junior Honor Society are: Edward McGarry, Virginia Coughlin, Ellen Bamberry, Catherine Langley, Barbara Ross, Robert Croswell, Janice Johnston, Marcia Bergman, Veronica MacDonnell, Diane Doiron, Paula Delairrio, Raymond Knowles, Byron Hurder, Jean Pasquantonio, Marilyn Larrabee, Jeanne Wright, Carolyn Goodman, Diane Doyle, Robert Mauritz, Anne Curtis, Douglas Lemire, Myna Proal, William Proal, Janice Collins, Leslie Dalghren, Linda Costa, Lorrie Hutchinson, Jeanne Cartier, Patricia Vine, Peter DaVia, Patricia O'Brien, Jere Sievert, Mark Bigelow, Thomas Wadleigh, Noreen Daley, Joanne Raymond, Linda Lang, Christine Brown, Joan Lomasney, Deborah Bond, Susan Fenton, Donald Power, Brayton Hill, David Christensen, Ronald Eisner, David Power, Dennis Porter, and Thomas Croswell.

MEMBERS RAISE FUNDS FOR SCHOLARSHIP

Junior Honor Society members are also required to maintain high scholastic standards if they are to qualify for membership in the Helen Keller Chapter or to move up to the Senior Chapter. These young scholars are busy this year raising funds for a scholarship to be awarded to one of the senior members.

Their other activities include ushering at teachers' conventions and Parent's Night, assisting at graduation, and preparing the collation for the induction ceremony.

EDITORS STRUGGLE TO MEET DEADLINE

Yearbook editors and their staffs work long hours to get the complete story of the current school year pictorialized and printed. The deadline date is the editors bogey-man. As the date comes closer picture captions and running heads become more elusive. To make certain of getting her pages in, Collette Pelletier, undergraduates editor, took them to the hospital with her.

FINANCING THE CHIEFTAIN

Chieftain business staff members have the monumental task of financing the yearbook. They work hard to sell advertising space to the tri-town industrialists and merchants; to solicit patrons; and to sell subscriptions to members of the student body.

interest in future careers

FUTURE TEACHERS

Through lectures and observation members of the Future Teachers of America at King Philip spend four years learning about careers in teaching. In June of their senior year, members are allowed to do practice teaching in the elementary schools in the regional towns.

COUNCIL ADDS TO ITS RESPONSIBILITIES

Student Council, along with its many responsibilities: social calendar, operation of school store, annual elections, and acting as representatives of the student body in all school matters, has undertaken this year the promotion of a talent show for the benefit of college scholarships. As part of their service philosophy, they are aiding a student in Kentucky who would find it impossible to continue her high school education without gifts of clothing and books which the council sends at Christmas.

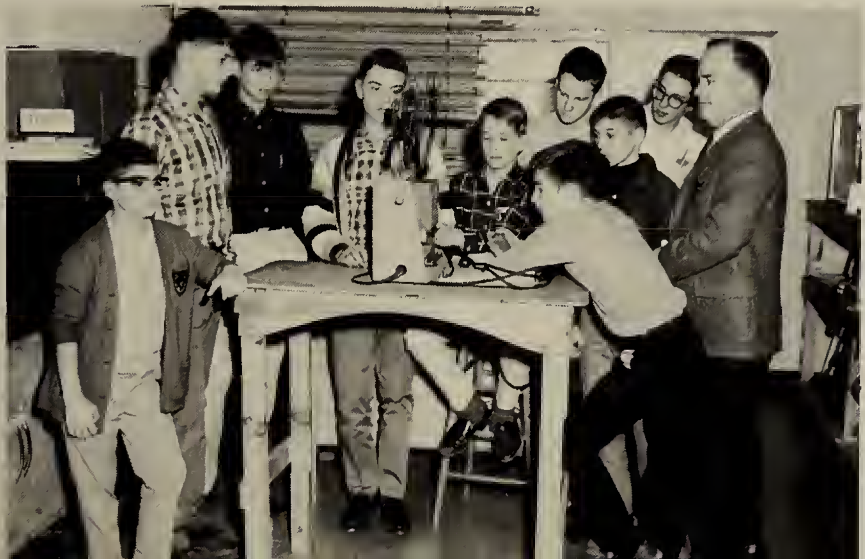
VERSATILE HELPERS

Council members who issue and check in books, keep shelves in order and repair and process new books, make it possible for Mrs. Winona LoGrasso, librarian, to tend to more important functions of the library; helping students to find reference material, cataloguing, and previewing and selecting new publications.

Students welcome the chance to serve

The library is a fitting background for Key Club members: Robert Croswell, Paula DeLaiarro, Joan Lomasney, and Patricia Vine.

Michael Ferragamo, Leo Deshetres, Paul Cooney, Stanley Widak, Kenneth Guay, Michael Johnston, John Veverius, Norman Brown, and David Topham learn useful skills working with A.V.A. director, Mr. Francis Gallipeau.



STUDENT AND PUBLIC BENEFIT

Students and the public benefit greatly because members of the A.V.A. club are interested in setting up and operating stage sound and lighting equipment at all school and public functions.

Teachers rely on the group members for help in setting up and operating the audio-visual equipment — tape recorders, projectors, and phonographs which enhance and enrich classroom teaching.

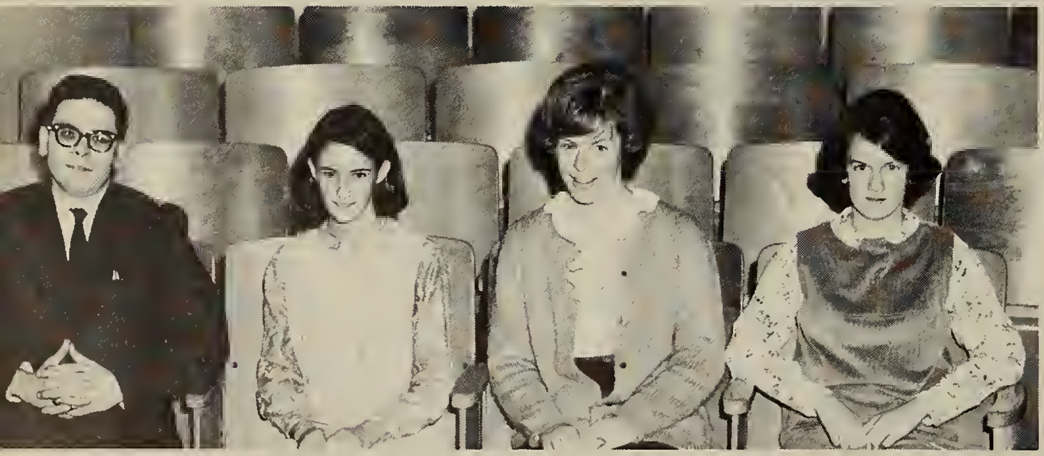
POLITICAL SCIENCE CLUB

The main objective of the newly formed Political Science Club is the promotion of interest in government and politics. Members attend lectures during which various local political figures speak on the intricacies of political science.

Political Science Club members listen intently to Senator John M. Quinlan.



Political Science Club officers: Gail Waldron, secretary; Margaret Rogers, president; and Nancy Howell, vice-president; are assisted by Mr. Richard Guillette, social studies teacher; in planning club meetings.

Jere Sievert and Margaret Such, consuls, read a scroll with Mrs. Lucy Costello, Classical League advisor.

ROMAN CULTURE

One of the oldest national secondary school organizations is the Junior Classical League, an organization designed to enhance the knowledge of Roman civilization and culture for Latin students. The league meetings are conducted in accordance with the manner of ancient Roman forums. Officers hold titles of consul, praetor, aediles, quaestors and scribae.

William Easterbrooks, Raymond Knowles, Stephen Geishecker, Howard Haase, and Roger Eaton perform for the Saturnalia guests.

Active interest in foreign languages leads

French Club members who have studied French for four years are: Mary Simpson, Collette Pelletier, Leslie Dalghren, Jean Pasquantonio, Laure Lumnah, Marcia Reid, Veronica MacDonnell, Janice Boucher, Susan Croswell, Janice Collins, Janet Fredericksen, Carolyn Goodman, Kristine Brown, Anne Curtis, Joanne Raymond, Ann Lukk, Karen Pearson, Charles Bedard, Arlene Beauchemin, Douglas Lemire, Ronald Eisner, Gail Sullivan, Mark Bigelow, Melissa Swenson, Dennis Porter, Nancy LaPointe, Diana Tower, Ellen Carlson, Thomas Wadleigh, and Barbara Nason.

Leadership responsibilities for the French Club have been given to: Mrs. Lorna Russell, and Miss Priscilla Barnes, French teachers; Ann Lukk, treasurer, Karen Pearson, secretary, Mrs. Mildred Wallace, foreign language department chairman; Ellen Carlson, president, and Veronica MacDonnell, vice-president.

Second and third year French students in the French Club are: Susan Logan, Marsha Alsworth, Catherine Langley, Virginia Binney, Joan Baxter, Diane Doyle, Patricia Vine, Jeanne Cartier, Deborah Bond, Patricia O'-Brien, Gail Waldron, Robert Mauritz, Robert Croswell, Mary Mavrides, Marcia Bergman, and Barbara Ross.

MODERN LANGUAGES – A MUST

Dr. James B. Conant is of the opinion that students should study modern foreign languages for at least four years and should become masters of one. Within the framework of a classroom much time must be given to fundamentals. It becomes necessary, therefore, to have an outlet for those students who have more than a grade interest in the language. Language clubs provide the opportunity for students to learn the cultural backgrounds and customs of the respective language countries.

Dennis Porter's translation of Clement Moore's "Twas the Night Before Christmas" is recited by Patricia Vine.

New cultural activities add to knowledge

German-Russian Christmas traditions were closely adhered to in all phases of the holiday celebration including the foods served at the Christmas buffet.

NEW ACTIVITY

German and Russian cultures need as much understanding as do the traditional French and Spanish cultures. This year King Philip added a German-Russian culture club to the extracurricular activity list. Through this organization the juniors and seniors, who study these languages have an opportunity to learn more about the peoples and languages of the countries of origin.

German-Russian students: Jean Pasquantonio, Susan Croswell, Dianne Hamilton, Ann Lukk, president; Jere Sievert, secretary; Bonnie Jones, Wendy Boutilier, Christine Perry, Shirley Blaisdell, Mrs. Valentina Dzelzitis, German-Russian teacher and club advisor; Naida Twardzicki, Paula Hefron, Kathyrn Patton, treasurer; Leslie Dalghren, Joanne Raymond, Neil Davin, Natalie Gardner, Laure Lumnah, Nancy Howard, Janice Boucher, Linda Fuller, Marcia Reid, and Marylanna Reybrock, were interested enough in the cultures of the two countries to organize a club.

Marching and concert bands

Mr. Raymond Hill, director, leads the marching band onto the field.

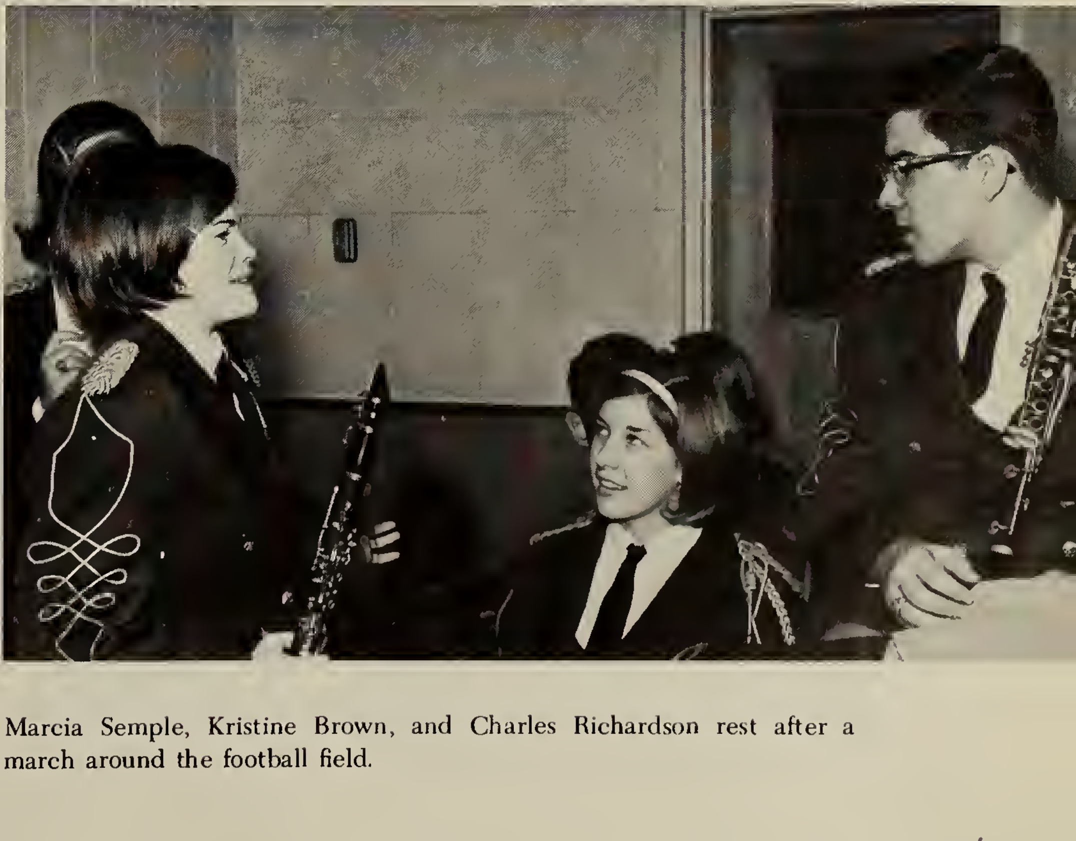
COLOR AND EXCITEMENT

King Philip's marching band with its precision timing and musical talent, under the direction of Mr. Raymond Hill and Mr. Edward Denon, adds color and excitement to the tri-town holiday parades, pep rallies, and half-time at the football games.

As part of the parody on "General Hospital," George Hussey, Glen Firth, William Helfen, and Charles Martin form an "eye" while playing "I Only Have Eyes for You."



Marcia Semple, Kristine Brown, and Charles Richardson rest after a march around the football field.

Talent showcases

TALENT AND PROFICIENCY

Students, parents, and friends enjoy greatly the musical talent and proficiency of the concert band, conducted by Mr. Raymond Hill, which entertains at the Christmas and spring concerts and at all King Philip functions including graduation.

Flutists: Linda Bailey, Carolyn Dusty, Lois Reynolds, Donna Nelson, Deborah Willard, Patricia Vine, Lizbeth Breitbart, and Beth Barrows are essential to the melody of band selections.

Choirs give voice to music

CHOIRS ADD TO MUSICAL PROGRAMS

Junior and senior choir members are a pleasing adjunct to the concert band. Voices, carefully trained by Mr. Raymond Hill, music director, add greatly to all music department programs.

Junior choir second sopranos: Karen Dittrich, Dorothea Pazurchek, Catherine Lussier, Cynthia Green, Donna Card, Valerie Carter, Margaret Patton, Linda Konetchy, Deborah Robbins, Deborah Bergeron, Kathleen Wadleigh, Victoria Hayden, Kathleen Cronin, Karen Leutzinger, Nancy Howard, and Diane Carpenter eagerly await senior choir status.

Senior choir members: Marsha Alsworth, Karen Sprague, Coleen Davin, Linda Sorenson, Donna Martucci, Carol Schickle, Marcia Semple, Frances Boudreau, Jeanne Cartier, Paula Hefron, Karol Sprague, Maryelayna Reybrock, Linda Tourtilotte, Cynthia Beauchemin, Donna Woolford, Barbara Westhaver, Barbara Beauchemin, Carolyn Hinton, Kathleen Plante, Pauline Hazlett, and Gail Waldron have sung in many programs.

Senior choir second sopranos: Margaret Rogers, Nancy Howell, Jeanne Wright, Joanne Raymond, Bonnie Jones, Barbara Ross, and Jeanette Gilchrist provide the harmony.

SMOKE SIGNALS

Smoke Signals, the monthly King Philip newspaper, which gives voice to student opinion and reports school news is a product of the combined efforts of students who are interested in journalism and reporting. The staff members learn to set up the paper, write editorials, report school news, and to edit carefully and precisely.

Voice of King Philip

Mrs. Eleanor Reed Alter, English teacher and advisor to Smoke Signals, types articles for the newspaper, while Mrs. Alice Church, Reading director, and Mrs. Lucy Costello, Latin teacher, proof-read.

Ellen Carlson and William Helfen do research in the library for the next edition of Smoke Signals.

Lack of depth and experience

Head coach Conrad Pensavalle and assistant coach Thomas Hartley, with 1966 Warrior co-captains Peter Finley and Peter Stasis, face a tough schedule.

AND SO, WE LOST.

In football, as in every sport, there is a first string and a reserve unit. Although the first string may get more recognition, the men sitting on the bench nervously await the time when they will be needed. They all play to win. This, despite a no win season, is the attitude and spirit of the King Philip Warriors —

Better luck next year.

1965 WARRIOR NINE TOPS PAST RECORDS.

When the 1965 Warriors edged a one run win over the highly favored Randolph team, the King Philip followers realized what coach Michael Cosentino and the eleven veteran lettermen knew — that the 1965 team was King Philip's best team to date and would and did top all previous scoring records.

Although the Canton game resulted in a tie score, it was the most exciting of the season's games. It was a pitcher's duel all the way. Pitcher William Rice worked hard to hold the line, but work he did, and he held Canton to a no run score. Coach Cosentino is sure that there is enough depth and talent among his '66 players to equal or top the '65 record.

Parents' night, 1965, at King Philip provided many parents with a better understanding of the academic activities within the classroom, for they were invited to sit in on regular classes. On the evening of December 20, 1965, the King Philip band and choir entertained students, teachers, parents, and friends with a program of band and choral selections befitting the holiday season. The annual Christmas concert is the musical highlight of the school year. Under the direction of Mr. Raymond Hill, the band and choir have successfully staged this event for the past nine years.

Musical showcase for Christmas

During the annual Christmas concert, musical director Mr. Raymond Hill leads the junior choir in a popular selection.

Charles Richardson and Marcia Semple, Chieftain editors, are members of the senior band conducted by Mr. Raymond Hill.

Clarinet and trumpet sections add to the tonal quality of the band.

Junior choir voices ring out loud and clear when Mr. Raymond Hill conducts and Jeanne Wright plays the accompaniment.

is a popular annual event

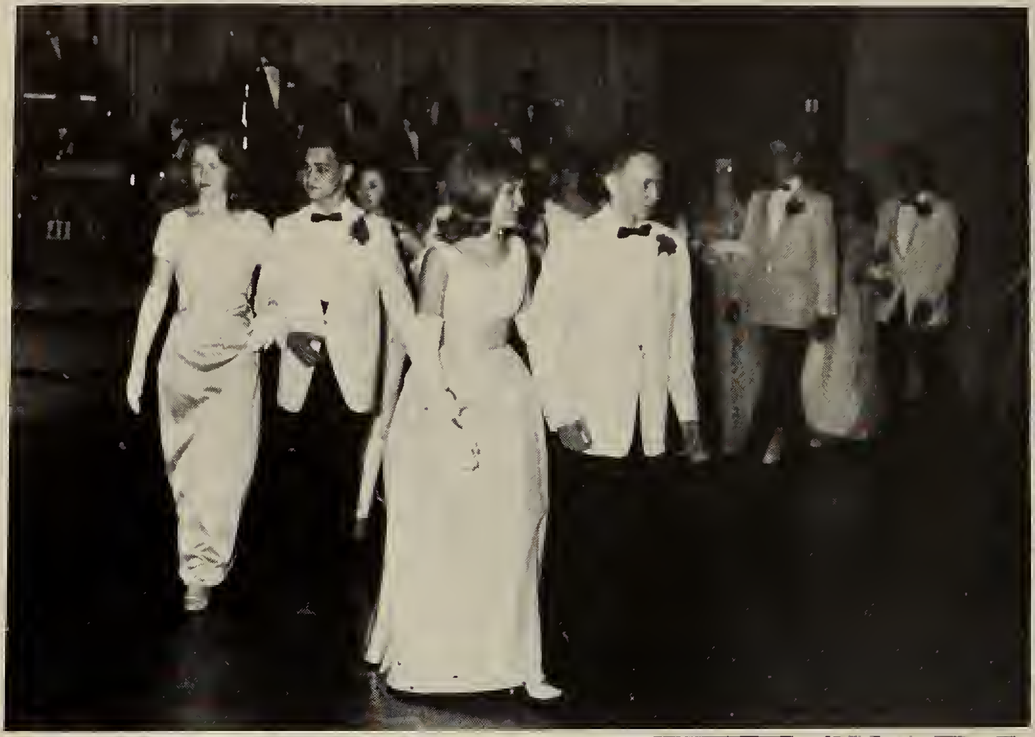
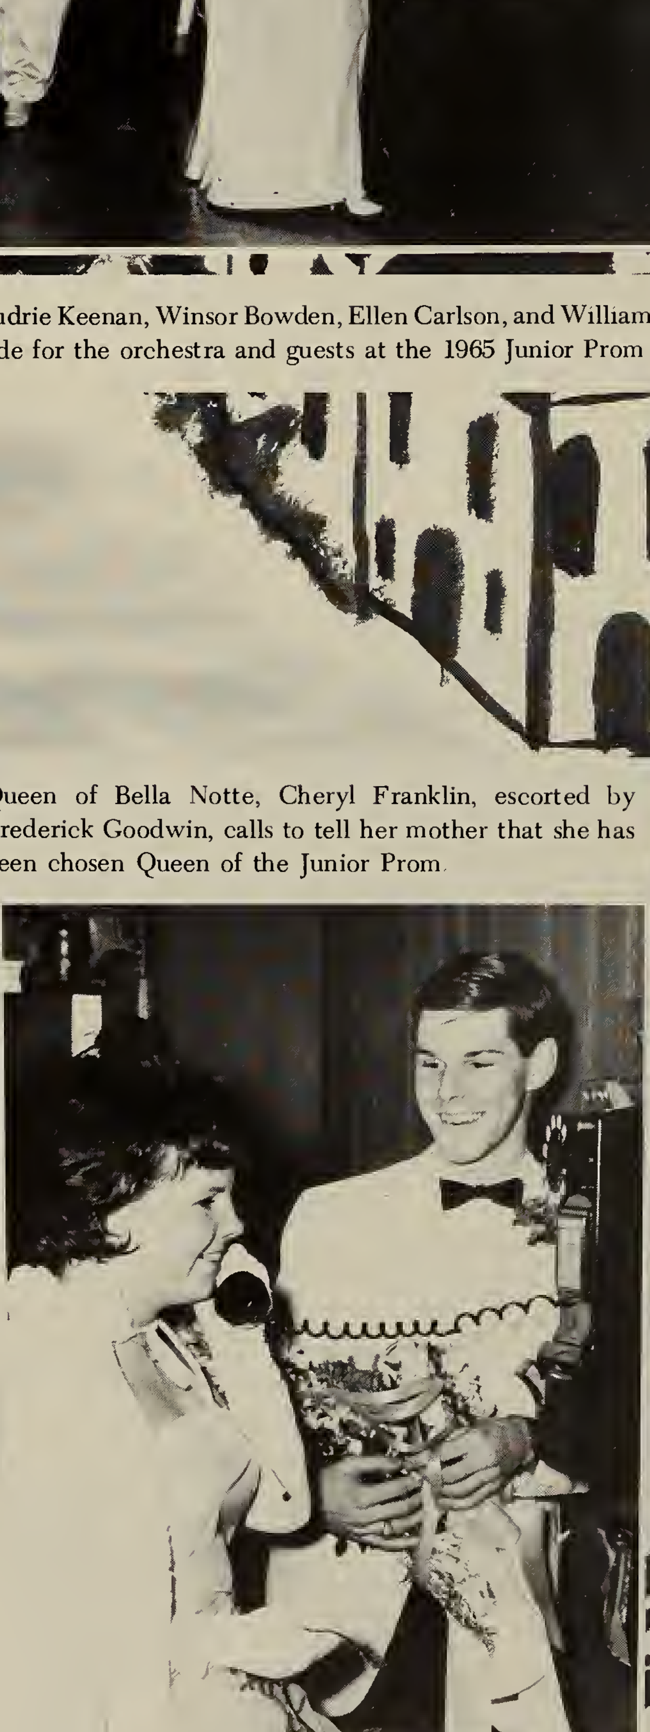
Canals and palaces of Venice



Joudrie Keenan, Winsor Bowden, Ellen Carlson, and William Helfen promenade for the orchestra and guests at the 1965 Junior Prom — Bella Notte.

Queen of Bella Notte, Cheryl Franklin, escorted by Frederick Goodwin, calls to tell her mother that she has been chosen Queen of the Junior Prom.



BELLA NOTTE

Beautiful night in Venice was the theme of the 1965 Junior Prom. All students and guests found the promise of the motif fulfilled. Colorful Venetian street scenes and Italian fruit place cards transformed the ballroom into a Bella Notte for the beautifully gowned co-eds and their escorts.

Tri-Town Police

DATE: Thursday, Dec. 16
TIME: 8 P. M.
PLACE: KING PHILIP GYM
SPONSOR King Philip Booster Club

☆ Wilder than a Rodeo! ☆

☆ Funnier than a Circus! ☆

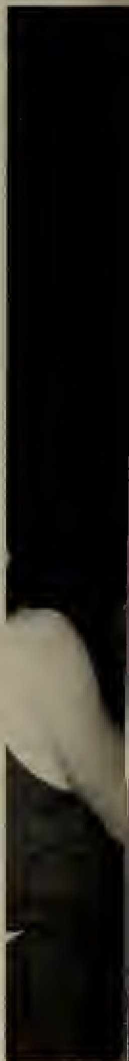
ADULTS $1.00
CHILDREN 50c

Mr. David Eaton, superintendent, Mr. Charles Manos, principal, Mr. Conrad Pensavalle, guidance counsellor, and Mr. Thomas Hartley, basketball coach, rest with their "pets" at half-time.

College-bound students profit

King Philip boosters roar with laughter when Mr. Thomas Hartley, the pulling force, meets up with "Mr. Donkey," the immovable object.

Mr. Glen Kibler, biology teacher, smiles as he is pursued by officer James Killion of the Wrentham police force.



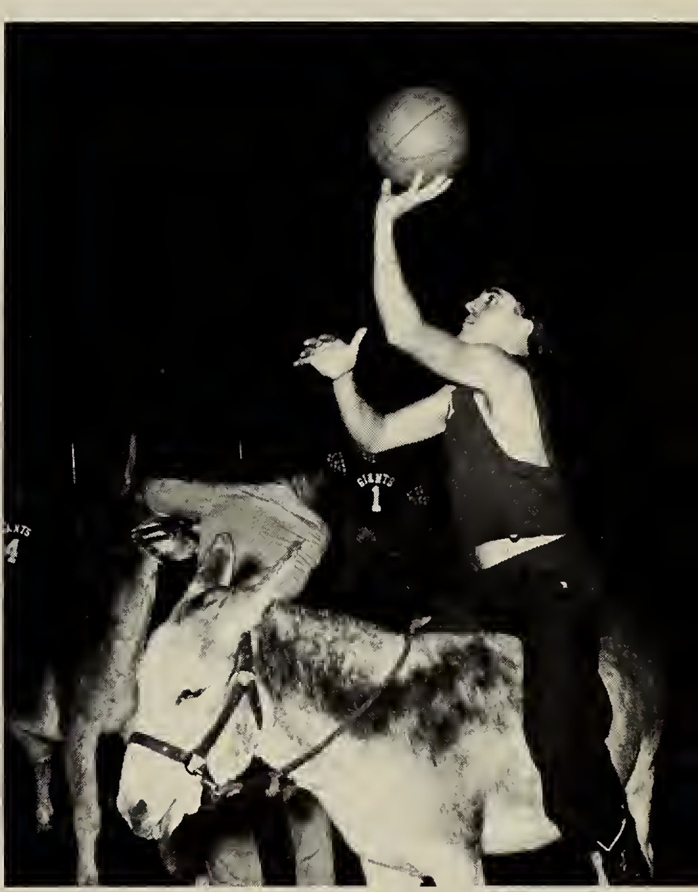
HOOVES AWAY

On December 16, the King Philip faculty and the tri-town police took to the basketball court aboard donkeys for an unusual and hilarious evening of fun. Sponsored by the King Philip Boosters Club for the benefit of the citizens' scholarship foundation, the donkey basketball game revealed the riding ability of our faculty and police to a crowded gymnasium. At the end of an exciting touch and go game, the faculty members were victorious.

Mr. James Ferney, social studies practice teacher from Boston College, shouts encouragement in the hope that Mr. Glen Kibler, biology teacher, will make the basket.

from adult efforts

Mr. James Mahoney, Norfolk police officer, takes a "do or die" grip on his donkey reins, Mr. Jeffrey Lambert, chemistry teacher, tries for a rebound; Mr. James Anderson, Wrentham police officer, fights for the same rebound; and again the crowd roars.



Wearing his Texan hat and boots, Mr. Glen Kibler, of the King Philip faculty, proves that Texans can both ride and "shoot".

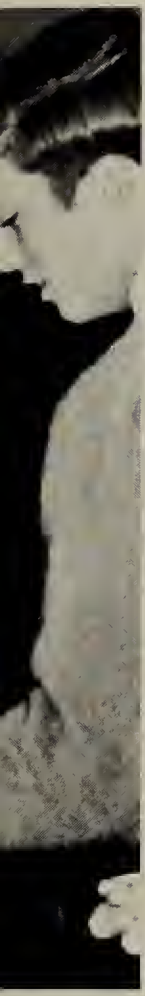
John Flanagan acts as the disc-jockey at the King Philip dances.

Robert Fink pays the admission fee to Jeannette Gilchrist and Arlene Beauchemin. Kathryn Patton, Mr. Charles Vaillancourt, and police chief Walter Hobbs are, also, part of the school dance scene.

Frequent school dances

John Flanagan trips the "light fantastic" with Victoria Kapolchok at a school dance.

Mary-Ellen Flanagan sits out the dance with Mark McLean, Sandra Stone, and Denise Roy.



SCHOOL DANCES POPULAR

Students in grades seven through twelve patronize the school dances for evenings of fun and entertainment. The funds raised are used to support the student government and the class treasuries.

Dancing to popular recordings or combos provides an outlet which satisfies the social needs of the students.

Christine Perry, Student Council vice-president, sells soft drinks at one of the Senior dances.

are a showcase for social activities

Although fast modern dances are the order of the day, King Philip students prove that they can slow dance to a waltz.

Students become aware of civic responsibility

Yearbook editors, Marcia Semple and Dianne Hamilton, were chosen as Girls' State representatives from Plainville and Wrentham respectively.

Tri-town American Legion Posts chose as representatives to Boys' State. Guy Wickman, Plainville; William Helfen, Wrentham; Winsor Bowden, Norfolk; and William Perry.

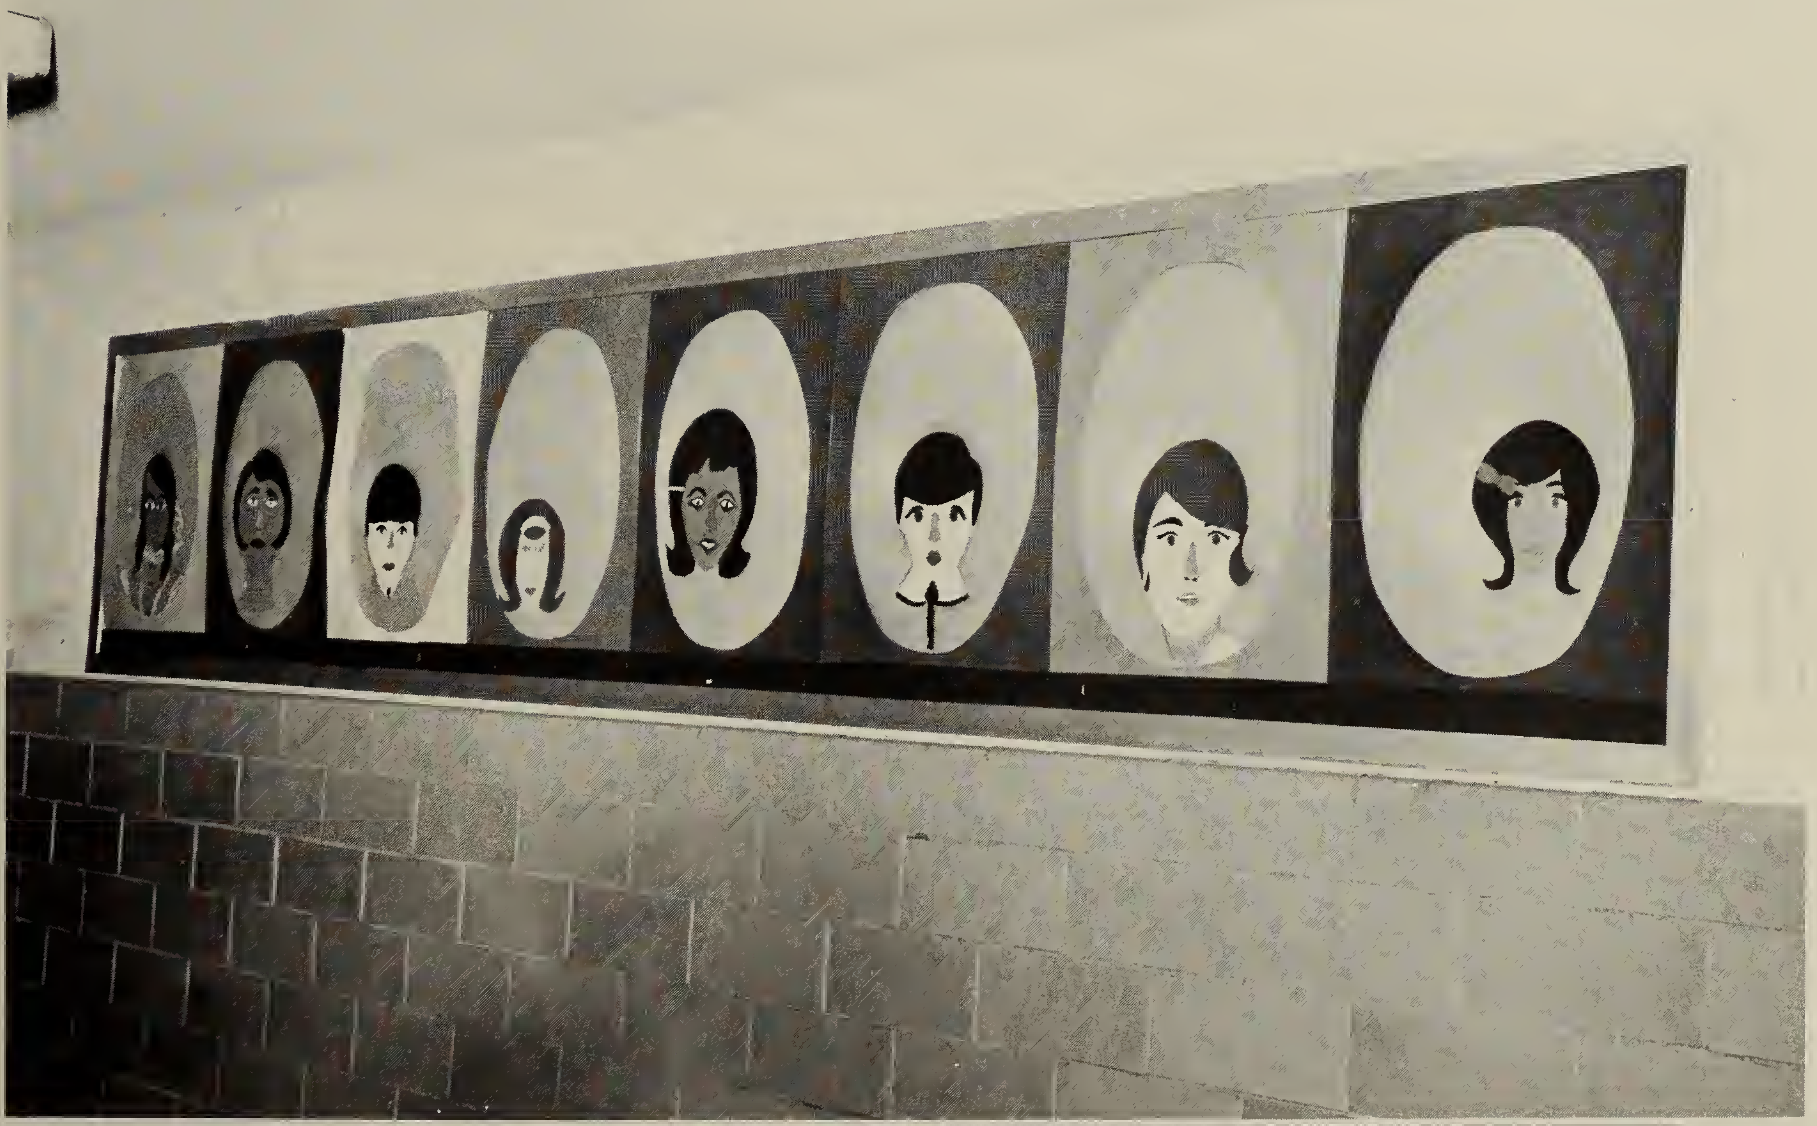
STUDENTS WORK AT GOVERNMENT

Each year, qualified junior boys and girls are chosen by the American Legion Post in each town as delegates to represent King Philip at Boys' State and Girls' State. These conventions are organized to better orient our youth to the complexities of government and politics. For one week, the boys live at the University of Massachusetts, and the girls live at Bridgewater State College in the company of similarly selected high school students. During this week, their lives revolve around government and politics. Their actual involvement in government practices gives them a broader perspective and truer grasp of the problems that face the legislative and administrative branches of our government.

Boys chosen as alternates to attend University of Massachusetts conventions were Peter Stasis, Norfolk; Charles Richardson and Eric Hatch, Wrentham; and Richard Lunn, Plainville.

Girls' State alternate from Plainville was Collette Pelletier and the Wrentham alternate was Mary Jane Delaney.

UNDERGRADUATES



LAST SEVENTH GRADE CLASS

Members of the Class 1971 have the unique distinction of being the last group of elementary school graduates to enter King Philip Regional High School as seventh graders. This one year at King Philip should help the class gain the maturity and leadership qualities to function effectively as the "seniors" at the new junior high school.

Seventh graders elected: Ronald Tibbetts, president; Martha Connors, secretary; Kim West, treasurer; and Dorothea Pazurchek, vice-president, to lead their class.

EIGHTH GRADERS MOVE FORWARD

One year in the "showcase" has benefited the eighth grade class. The fact that they will be the first ninth graders in a four year high school, with expanded curriculum, should give them greater scholastic and vocational advantage.

President, Kathryne Kaine's suggestion arouses the enthusiasm of Carla Alsworth, secretary; Arlene Doyle, treasurer; and Susan Lukk, vice-president.

SOPHOMORES ON EXHIBIT

Upon reaching the sophomore year, students are encouraged to evince social and intellectual maturity and to begin the preparation for their respective careers. Each sophomore is expected to behave in academic and extra-curricular activities as if he were being closely scrutinized, and as if his accomplishments were to be exhibited in a vast showcase of knowledge.

Tenth graders have elected Lynn Dynan, secretary; Robert Croswell, president; William Ashe, vice-president; and Susan Logan, treasurer.

PREPARATION FOR LEADERSHIP

During the junior year, emphasis is placed upon refinement of character and academic conscienciousness. Along with the honor of being considered upperclassmen, goes the task of assuming responsibility in preparation for the coming senior year. The acquisition of confidence and leadership qualities is as equally important in the junior year as is academic achievement.

Charles Bedard plays Santa Claus for French club members.

In line with Russian tradition, Mrs. Valentina Dzelzitis gives Leslie Dalghren an apple for Christmas.

Epilogue

1966 Chieftain staff members have endeavored to present their showcase realistically and honestly with the earnest hope that it incorporates the best of the New England educational tradition and heritage.

Learning within the showcase has been a preparation for whatever may lie ahead in today's rapidly changing world. This preparation is the foundation for the inseparable living-learning process which is neverending. The ultimate test of the significance of the showcase attraction will be evidenced in how well those who come forth from the showcase accept civic, economic, and social responsibilities.

If the learning within the showcase has true value, it will encourage openmindedness, intellectual curiosity, and creativity. By becoming more critical in independent judgements and gaining greater perspectives, King Philip Regional High School graduates should continue to move forward in the best of the New England tradition.
